III. Severe flaws in American-style democracy

According to United Nations, the United States has gone further in 2017, as the news organizations public service has been eroded, the distrust has deepened, and in many areas, confidence of the public has been lost. The potential of media to influence the public’s judgment has been undermined.

Money political make inflationary. The number of officials and representatives has been reduced to fewer than 500 in the House of Representatives and the Senate. The number of political action committees of representatives has increased to about 2,500. The case of the retired Navy officers, including the retired Navy officers in 2017, is the first instance of the U.S. government corruption has risen in the country (www.journalism.org, April 4, 2017).

Another concern is the rise of government corruption in 2017, as the government has resisted efforts to stop the rise of corruption. The number of government corruption cases has risen to about 3,000 in 2017, as the government has implemented measures to stop the rise of corruption (www.anthonyweiner.com, June 4, 2017).

In Alabama, more than 70,000 Americans were disenfranchised in 2016, as the government has utilized various tactics to disenfranchise anyone with a criminal record. The government has imposed severe barriers. A report on November 15, 2017, showed that the number of disenfranchised Americans has risen to about 110,000 in 2017, as the government has utilized various tactics to disenfranchise anyone with a criminal record.
